Local Telehealth Startup Company Receives Best New Business of the Year Award

Honolulu, Hawaii (December 6th, 2021) – Pacific Edge Magazine awards NIU Health the 2021 Hawaii's Best New Business of the Year award.

Pacific Edge Magazine (PEM) held its annual Business Achievement Awards on December 3rd. Due to COVID restrictions, the event was televised on KITV and livestreamed on social media.

Nominees in this category have set themselves apart not only with their product or service, but also through their innovation, marketing, good business practices, and a commitment to the community, making them front-runners in their field. NIU Health is honored to be among some of the fastest growing, innovative companies on the island.

The Best New Business award recognizes companies that have been in business for no more than three years and have made a positive community impact in a short period of time.

NIU Health was recognized for breaking the access barriers of good healthcare. Its revolutionary concept offers affordable, quality, and convenient healthcare despite someone's socio or economic background.

"We are so humbled and honored to receive the Best New Business of the Year award. I've always believed everyone deserves affordable quality healthcare. The day we prioritize healthcare without barriers, our world will transform" – Dr. Tony Trpkovski
